1. A draft Executive Order on executive oversight was received from the White House on Saturday morning for comment by the end of next week. It assigns similar responsibilities to PFIAB and the NSCIC. There is a difference in tone, however; the NSCIC is consumer oriented while PFIAB looks to the President's interests and has "IG" functions.

2. Mr. Walsh outlined problems we have been experiencing in our efforts to have a representative on hand during SSC/HSC interviews. The House has been especially insistent that such representatives must be requested by the person being interviewed. The latest wrinkle is that the House staffers do not want representatives from the same chain of command as the witness. Mr. Walsh asked whether we should establish a pool of monitors at the deputy division chief or above, from which representatives could be drawn. There was general agreement to this approach and Mr. Walsh asked those present to give the name of their nominee to [REDACTED]
